

THE SOUTHERN SOCIETY

Makes it Unpleasant for Ex-Congressman John S. Wise.

THEIR ARROGANCE AND BIGOTRY

Compels Him Out of Self Respect to Resign His Membership—His Brilliant Speech at Cooper Union During the Campaign Offended the Fastidious Tastes of the Ultra Southern Chivalry—Wise's Patriotism Was Too Strong for the Former Slave Holding Aristocracy.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Mr. John Sargent Wise, the well known lawyer and orator of this city, has resigned from the Southern Society of New York. His resignation is the subject of conversation among Southern men wherever they meet. The cause was an episode in the clubhouse a few weeks ago.

Mr. Wise entered the house one day with a friend, the Press reporter is told by a prominent member of the Southern Club, full of happy greeting. It was not long after the heat of the campaign and that fusillade of Cooper Union speeches from prominent orators of both sides. Mr. Wise had been one of the orators. The close of his speech, referring to the death of President Harrison's wife, had, some say, surpassed the wonderful flights of his father, Henry A. Wise, during his famous "Know Nothing" campaign in Virginia of long ago. This close was sweet, with those tender, loving bell notes of the human heart, and neither Democrat nor Republican could be deaf to such music.

Cooper Union rocked with applause. The Democrats forgot the music, especially the southern Democrats, and thought morosely of the brilliantly drawn analogy made by Mr. Wise between the Democratic platform of today upon the tariff and the confederate constitution of war times.

THAT COOPER UNION SPEECH.

The analogy had delighted the audience, who fell under the spell of Mr. Wise's eloquence, but some of the orator's fellow members in the southern club were sore.

Mr. Wilton Randolph, a Virginian, was one of those members. So, when Mr. Wise came in with his friend one day he met Mr. Wilton Randolph in the hall.

Mr. Wise introduced his friend. Said Mr. Wilton Randolph:

"Did you make that speech in Cooper Union last night?"

"I did."

"Then I don't care to shake hands with you or your friend," was the reply of Mr. Randolph.

Mr. Wise expressed his indifference in a "down south" way, and the matter, for the nonce, ended.

It came up, however, before the house committee. The two members were censured by it, and as a consequence Mr. Wise later handed in his resignation.

The member of the club who was interviewed by a reporter was frank to say that while the club was decidedly "at odds" with Mr. Wise for the sentiments expressed by him in his Cooper Union speech, yet it by no means upheld Mr. Randolph. He wished it to be understood that the bulk of the club considered that Mr. Wise had been discourteously treated, yet he wished to be equally frank in saying that Mr. Randolph had many friends in the matter.

TWO NOTED FAMILIES.

Mr. Wise and Mr. Randolph represent two of the most distinguished of Virginia families, the one being a son of the late Henry A. Wise; the other being a lineal descendant of Thomas Jefferson.

Mr. Wise is a man of brilliant talents, was in the battle of New Market from the Virginia Military Institute, and personally is beloved by many friends in his state. But it is no secret that "society" became so disagreeable for Mr. Wise on account of his Republican faith that he preferred to take his family away from his native state. His clever and beautiful wife was one of the most gracious society leaders in the state. Mr. Wise was a fighter of duels once, but gave up the practice when challenged last by Page McCarty.

Mr. Randolph, it is said, is a brother of the young Mr. Randolph who fought the broadsword duel with Robert Neville, the gentleman who lately, in Madison Square Garden, slapped the face of Mr. Howland. It is not known whether or not Mr. Randolph has yet given up allegiance to the code duello, but it is thought not.

ANOTHER STORY OF THE INCIDENT.

A slightly different story of the incident at the club-house is told by a prominent member. He says that as Captain Wise was passing out of the Southern club with his friend he was accosted by Mr. Wilton Randolph, who said:

"John Wise, how can you belong to the Southern club and make Republican speeches?"

Mr. Wise is reported to have responded:

"Who appointed you to criticize me?"

The matter came up before the Executive Committee, who passed, as the reporter was told, a severe censure on Mr. Randolph and a "mild" censure on Captain Wise. Asked why any censure was passed on Captain Wise, the member said it was threatened. If Mr. Randolph was censured and Mr. Wise was not, that fifty or more of the members would at once resign. Captain Wise, it was added, had not been in the club since the day he was interviewed on his politics by Mr. Randolph.

Mr. Wilton Randolph was seen and was delightfully graceful in manner. He very chivalrously declined to speak of Mr. Wise in Mr. Wise's absence. He was ignorant of the fact that Mr. Wise had resigned, he said.

Captain Wise is in Europe. Mrs. Wise, at her home, No. 226 West Sixty-fourth street, refused to say anything in her husband's absence.

"Has Captain Wise resigned from the Southern Society?" she was asked.

"Yes, and I have the acceptance of his resignation up stairs."

This is absolutely all Mrs. Wise would say.

RECOLLECTIONS.

What a blessed thing is memory! How it brings up the pleasures of the past, and hides its unpleasantness! You recall your childhood days, do you not, and wish they would return? You remember the pleasant associations, while the unpleasant ones are forgotten. Perhaps to your mind comes the face of some friend. It was once a pale, sad face. It showed marks of pain, lines of care. It seemed to be looking into the hereafter, the unknown future. And then you recalled how it brightened, how it recovered its rosy hue, how it became a picture of happiness and joy. Do you remember these things? Many people do, and gladly tell how the health returned, how happiness came back, how the world seemed bright. They tell how they were once weak, nervous, perhaps in pain, certainly unhappy. They tell of sleepless nights, restless days, untouched food, unstrung nerves. And then they tell how they became happy, healthy and strong once more. You have heard it often in the past, have you not? You have heard people describe how they were cured and kept in health? You certainly can remember what it is that has so helped people in America. If not, listen to what Mrs. Annie Jenness Miller, who is known universally as the great dress reformer, says: "Six years ago, when suffering from mental care and overwork, I received the most pronounced benefit from the use of that great medicine, Warner's Safe Cure." "Ah, now you remember. Now you recall how much you have heard of this great Cure. Now you are ready to admit that memory is usually pleasing, that the highest pleasure comes from perfect health, and that this great remedy has done more to produce and prolong health than any other discovery ever known in the entire history of the whole world."

BELLALIRE.

All Sorts of Local News and Gossip from the Glass City.

A divorce suit was filed in the common pleas court this week which will cause considerable of a sensation here. It was filed by Levia Crozier (or Kennedy) against William K. Crozier. It is an unusual case from the fact that the petitioner recites that they were not married by any regular or constituted authority, but that in August, 1885, they started to West Alexander to get married; that they were late starting and when they got to Bridgeport concluded they could not get to West Alexander before people were in bed; that they returned from there and she did not like to go home, as she had told her folks she was going to get married. Then she alleges that Mr. Crozier said they would report that they were married; that he said: "We have been going together for a long time; we know and love each other, and we will marry ourselves." She wanted a certificate, but he told her, "Thousands had no certificates, and if you will honor and obey me and be true to me, I now take you as my lawful wife;" that she then said: "Honor and be true to me and I will take you to be my lawful husband." They had three children, or rather the petitioner has three children, and they are recorded in the family Bible as "John Crozier, Dakota May Crozier," etc. Mr. Crozier is a prominent business man and the publication of the averments in this petition will be news to most people. It is presumed the suit was precipitated by the fact that he was recently lawfully married. J. B. Smith is the attorney in the case and says there are precedents for such suits. The petitioner is a sister of E. B. Kennedy.

The highest grade given in any branch was 98; Miss Brown was given this grade in arithmetic.
